

LANDSLIDE.

Los Angeles --- Tragedy in the night --- Like the crack of doom the Elysian Park Mountain came down upon the city in a 2-million-ton avalanche of earth and rock. Dawn revealed the extent of the tragedy. A concrete viaduct crushed like cardboard --- houses wrecked and boulders bigger than cars strewn among the debris. Power lines were broken and communications cut off.

TENNIS.

Sydney --- on the famous courts at Rushcutters' Bay they fought out the final of the New South Wales singles. Jack Crawford looked on, for he had been defeated by 19-year-old Johnny Bromwich. Bromwich, in the white cap, faced Adrian Quist --- and the youngster won. He has a most unorthodox style --- playing with either hand and sometimes with both. But he triumphed over his more experienced opponent. Look out, Wimbledon!

FASHIONS.

New York --- winter is the season when the lucky ones think about cruises. And if you are to be among the lucky ones, here are the fashions for you. Venice --- Lake Como --- Africa --- summer sunshine in winter. As you look at these pretty mannequins you may sigh to think of what you're missing. But don't worry --- they're not going either.
