

SNOW IN BUFFALO.

Winter's first cold spell hit New York State with a spectacular blizzard --- the worst for ten years. We in Britain have been grumbling about the cold --- but we haven't had this. For three days 300,000 people were snowbound. . . . food supplies were cut off -- highways choked --- traffic at a standstill. Snowdrifts ten feet deep settled in Buffalo and the man in demand was the man with the ~~spear~~ shovel. Snow may hold up the traffic of the towns, but the horse comes into his own. Cavalry at Fort Allen in Vermont were out practising for a winter campaign. Twenty ~~men~~ below zero --- but the good ^{old} horse never gets a frozen radiator. When the cavalry are bedded down for the night, the artillery takes over. Night firing makes a picturesque contrast in black and white --- a military salute to King Winter.

WAR PLANES AT LANGLEY FIELD.

On Manoeuvres again --- at Langley Field, America's Army pursuit planes demonstrated low flying in formation. This air show was marred by tragedy. One of ~~the~~ ^{the} ~~planes~~ planes crashed and its pilot was killed. ~~On the left of the picture you will see how one plane takes its fatal dive into the earth.~~
