

GARDEN PARTY.

At Wentworth House, a garden party commemorated Australia's greatest statesmen, and ladies and gentlemen arrived to represent the society of the day. . . . ~~the year 1938~~. It serves to show how lucky is the modern girl ~~with the freedom of the clothes of 1938~~. Do you know that beneath those hooped skirts that look like a birdcage, there are no fewer than six petticoats, as well as linen, starched muslin -- flannel --- quilted horsehair and a parrot. No wonder they look worried.

And now to Sydney for another Carnival --- but this time it's policemen on parade --- guardians of the law from all states of the Commonwealth, and New Zealand. They do a march of the toy soldiers, but they want oiling. Only the police dare deive like this --- if you do it, you get knocked out and run in.

~~And now the most spectacular item of the show~~ ^{and} a chariot race ~~which~~ recalling the days of ancient Rome. This was a ~~favorite~~ favourite sport ~~in the days~~ when Socrates was a commentator.

A terrific race between Aqua Pura ~~the young patrician~~ and Marcus Omnibus. ~~They're racing wheel to wheel. Marcus Omnibus is a man of the people and he has sworn either to win or to kill his patrician rival. Aqua Pura is the idol of the Senate.~~

It is well-known that ^{Aqua Pura} ~~he~~ is a friend of Caesar. It's not so well-known that he is also ^{chummy} ~~pretty well~~ with Cleopatra, ~~so the wheels thunder round the arena and the plebs about themselves hoarse with loud cries of mensa, mensa, mensam.~~

shouts of mensa
winner with mensa, mensa, mensam
Crispianus*
