

OLD BOAT RACE AND NEW MOTOR COACH.

This is what the Varsity Boat Race crew looked like in 1829--- just over a hundred years, but it makes all the difference. They look more like pirates than undergraduates, but then undergraduates ~~very~~ often do. ~~In 1829 the crew were fed on lemons,~~

But ~~but~~ their habits weren't altogether what we should call tough nowadays. ~~if this is any sample.~~ The race was rowed on the peaceful waters of Henley --- so river, crew and boat have all undergone a change ^{by now.} As there's change in sport, so there's change in transport. Here is a charabanc of the last century --- now look at the very latest thing to hit the eye in London... the road train. It is 62 feet long and it seats 82 passengers.

It has a corridor connection and bogey wheels for turning corners. It can travel at forty miles an hour --- but not in London. If it ever becomes popular they'll have to do something about those roundabouts. Otherwise it'll hold up traffic while it plays with its tail.
