QUADS.

The famous Miles Quads who come from St Neots, have grown quite big now, big enough, at any rate, to go to school. We thought you might like to see how they fared on their first day of term.

~~Here they are, three sturdy boys, and a charming little girl, receiving the final 'once over' from their Mummy. Mrs Miles is determined that they shall arrive all spick and span before leaving for their taster lessons.~~

Dress inspection over, they hurry to school, as they're a bit late, but they're not too late to have a tuck in at some sweets, as they go.

Having got there, they're met by the teacher, and given a hearty welcome. Once inside they have to attend Roll-Call- that's the first business of the day.

Then comes lessons and they have to get down to it. Anne soon gets down to it alright, for she's ^{looking for an} ~~threading beads~~ ~~across she's stopped~~ ~~and spills some on the floor.~~ ~~chopped.~~

This little complication over, the class is given lessons in singing, and the quads join in with gusto. This is the time to spot hidden talent,--- who knows that there isn't a budding Caruso or Patti amongst this small family group?

Lessons come to an end, and the class is ~~dismissed~~ dismissed. It's time to go home, but before they go, the kids say good-bye to their headmaster.

The first day at school is over--- and the little ones return home to the waiting arms of their devoted mother.
