

FLEET AIR ARM.

A glimpse of the Fleet Air Arm, somewhere in the world where sea meets desert. A brief glance at some of the pilots who always manage to look cheerful no matter how hard the going. These planes are Grumman Martlets, and this time they're <sup>going</sup> out on exercise. It's a mock attack on ~~an~~ <sup>an</sup> aerodrome --- the constant practice that makes our pilots second-to-none when the real thing comes along.

lap

U.S. FILM CANTEEN.

American film companies have presented mobile canteens to Britain, and Admiral Evans received them. Hundreds of these canteens given by Americans are now on service in Britain; they ~~provide~~ provide a tangible reminder of American help for Britain's cause: Hollywood is doing its bit, not only in this way, but also in making films which expose the Nazi regime on the screen of the free world.

ALLIED CONFERENCE.

Once again <sup>at</sup> St. James's Palace, ~~in London was the scene of a~~ a historic meeting of the Allied Governments; Mr. Eden, the Foreign Secretary, was in the chair. Attending the Conference were all the nations of Europe who are still carrying on the fight against Hitler, ~~as well as the Dominions and Colonial representatives of the British Empire.~~ M. Maisky represented the Soviet Union.

~~At the Conference~~ It was emphasized that <sup>our</sup> first aim ~~of the~~ <sup>and that's</sup> ~~was~~ was the ~~decisive~~ defeat of Germany; ~~It is~~ <sup>quite</sup> quite enough ~~to worry about~~ to worry about for the present.