CHINA BUILDS UP FOR ATTACK.

There's no big scale action going on in China like there is in Russia, but in all the years that China has been fighting Japan, their war has never stopped. Handicapped though they are for heavy armament, China's armies ~~use~~ ^{continue} their harassing tactics which keep a great part of Japan's armed force bogged down in the Far East.

China has made great strides since she was first attacked. Her Air Force is growing: and though it is still pitifully weak for a nation of so many millions it can grow like a forest fire when the United Nations can give it the planes and the ~~instructors~~ ^{instructors}.

Lastly --- the army. Great masses of infantry on this Yellow River Front are defending China's backdoor.

Japan was unable to defeat China when China stood alone. When the Allies are able to give full aid to Chiang Kai Shek then China too will take the offensive.
