

London. 9-35 am. And from King's Cross, a new train - "The Elizabethan" sets out to inaugurate the Coronation Year Express Servace to Edinburgh. The longest non-stop railway journey in the world.

Aboard - the passengers settle down. Some to a did-morning pick-me-up -

Aboard - the passengers settle down. Some to a min-morning pick-me-up - or/that breakfast they missed.

We leave them in comfort, while we remark - (from share remark the elevenxexactivexpress) the thrills of an epic run, hehind, as we average nearly a mile a minute.

Through the Towlends and into Waverley Station, Edinburgh - bang on time.

392 miles in six and three quarter hours. A record for the non-stop journey. The time - 4-20 pm.

SO THE ELIZABETHAN STEAMS INTO AT NEW POR OF RAILWAY HISTORY