

Royal Visit to Wales--

2037

July 10th. '53.

With the arrival of the Royal Train at Newport, the ~~XXXXXXXXXX~~ State - eagerly-awaited two-day/visit of the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh to Wales had begun.

And waiting to greet the Royal guests was the Lord Lieubenant of Monmouthshire- Lord Raglan.

Then-- to the ancient city and seaport of Cardiff--. And as the Queen stepped from her car, she was warmly greeted by Major C. Traherne- Lord Lieutenant of Glamorgan.

Following an inspection of the Guard of Honour, the Queen had a smile and a word for ~~XXXXXXXXXXXX~~ ex-service veterans.

Then- with the Lord Mayor (who later received a Knighthood) the Queen and the Duke saw a display of traditional dancing by the children.

So ended a Royal Day that Cardiff, and indeed All Wales, will long remember.
