

~~When the rival skipper came in to bat~~ - ^{Seen} The Duke of Edinburgh decided to put himself on - bowling leg-breaks - and enthusiastically fielding his own bowling, too.../

After the Duke of Norfolk had made four ~~runs~~ - a cunningly-flighted ball pierced his defence. / ~~the Duke of Norfolk~~

The Duke of Norfolk declared the innings closed at 204 for six ~~runs~~ - leaving the visitors two-and-a-half hours to make the runs.

And to their credit - the Duke of Edinburgh's side made a brave effort to get them... The Duke, himself, hit three boundaries, in a merry knock of eighteen. ² Though he was missed once - by a ^{quick} ~~long~~ throw-in. /

The Duke was finally bowled by George Cox of Sussex. The Duke of Norfolk's eleven won by seven runs, but the best total of all was well over £2,000 for a worthy organisation. /

There was hectic sport, too, at Brands Hatch, Kent, where sixty famous ~~Formula F1~~ drivers burned up the track in ten races for baby cars...

All the thrills were there - from massed starts - to single cars cornering at break-neck speeds ³.

E. Lewis Evans in his Cooper (No. 43) was placed in both the principal races, which were won by Don Parker in a Kieft. /

A record crowd ~~watched~~ watched the events - including a demonstration run by veteran racing cars. /

~~The oldest car competing was a 1905 Rolls Royce.~~ The winner was a Sunbeam - driven by J. Sears. ¹ The prize was Double-X spirit - enough to revive any veteran. /

Two crowded days of athletics, when Great Britain met France at the White City. The start of the Three Miles. Record-breaker Gordon Pirie and Freddy Green (in white vests) running for Britain.

Soon after the start - Pirie shoots ahead...

And he comes home alone - winning by eighty yards from Green - in 13 minutes 36.4 seconds. A time that shattered all his own records, and was only four seconds slower than the world record. /

~~The 800 yards - with Roger Bannister - (the world's fastest-miler) running for Britain...~~

Holiday (sheet three)

2044
~~who takes his medical exams next month -~~
~~The~~ young student makes his farewell appearance of the season on the track. He takes his medical examinations next month. He wins easily in 1 minute 50.7 seconds - the fastest half-mile of his career.

^{That} ~~a~~ killing pace ~~that~~ exhausted his famous rival, El Mabrouk of France, ~~+~~ Bannister helps him off the track.

Highlight of the meeting was the Four by One Mile Relay - in which ~~Britain~~ Britain's team of Chataway, Nankeville, Seaman and Bannister set up a new world record.

~~Britain~~ Chris Chataway to Nankeville - who ran his fastest-ever mile. 4 minutes 6.6 seconds.

Don Seaman to Bannister - who had to do a 4 minute 9 second mile to beat the record - held by Sweden.

Roger races home in 4 minutes 7.8 seconds...

^{Britain's} ~~team~~ had beaten the world record by 1 minute 8 seconds,

~~the fastest team of~~ Milers in the world.

And after ~~that~~ red-hot running like that - we need some cooler sports.

A shiver with a shower, even if it's only a makeshift one.

Or summer ski-ing on an artificial run-way on the other side of the Atlantic. 3

Here we go. Will you take your ice with a straw, or ^{get} your deserts in the hay? Very good. But we nautical people prefer water ski-ing.

Now for a real spine-chilling sport as Alfredo and Henry Traber try out their newest rope-walking act over Germany's highest peak - the Zugspitze - nine thousand feet above sea level.

When Father and Son meet - ^{they} ~~it~~ certainly reach a new high in daring entertainment.

One slip - and the curtain comes down on an act that was just too daring.

4B. IT'S FAR TOO DARING FOR OUR NAUTICAL ONLOOKERS

You'd think he'd be satisfied - but no - ^{their} ~~this~~ act must have everything...

~~For the~~ Trabers proudly announce that ~~the~~ ^{for} the first time, ~~this~~ this act has been performed without a safety net. They couldn't have chosen a higher test.

No wonder they want to make crash-helmets compulsory for motor-cyclists.

This is getting unbearable. SOUND.

^{ALL THIS} AND AFTER FLIRTING WITH DEATH - a kiss from the wife shows them that it's better to live.
