The Party of the Year at Biarritz-

Sept 4th. '53.

ARRIVALS

~~Guests arrive~~ at the Country Club near Biarritz for the fabulous party to be given by the Marquis de Cuevas, and said to have cost £60,000.

The guests wore costumes of the 18th century, and some represented characters of history and fiction.

Ballerina Renee Jeanmaire rode a camel, and by the light of torches, other arrivals seemed to bridge two centuries, as this "Party of the Year" got under way.

Then-- the ballet-- a picture of grace and beauty-- watched by an audience from another age.

The festivities, on this fantastic night, ended with dancing-- but dancing (you're bound to notice) that's definitely of this twentieth century.
