

Far away from fog-bound Britain, in the sunny South Pacific, the loyal Island communities are celebrating the arrival of the Queen on her Commonwealth Tour. Everywhere, traditional sports and festivals are in full swing. For though the Royal Visitors could not possibly visit every tiny island in this vast tract of ~~land~~^{OCEAN} - great excitement reigns.

The great "White Queen" has come to the Pacific - and that's really something to sing and dance about - even in a tropical paradise.

Meanwhile, in ^{THE OUT BACK OF} Australia, the ~~assembly~~^{LOCAL} assembly line is busy turning out boomerangs for demonstration purposes. Each one is decorated by hand - the design burnt in with a hot poker.

~~And already the Royal Tour has swept Australia on the rebound - and~~ ~~CHOIRS~~ are busy rehearsing ^{THE NEW} ~~the~~ Royal Song of Welcome / SOUND.
