News flashes round the world- Sept 28th. '54.

Dempsey Reunion-

Buenos Aires--- Thousands of fans- including President Peron- gather at the ringside, to honour Jack Dempsey- former world heavyweight champion, and Argentina's famous ex-boxer Luis Firpo.

In the early twenties Dempsey k.o'd the Argentinian champ, after he himself had been knocked out of the ring.

President Peron presents each sportsman with a medal- to commemorate two champions of the good old days.

Fireproof Suit-

America--- Wearing suits of light aluminium foil at a new fire-proof demonstration in New Jersey, rescuers brave scorching temperatures, as they plunge inside the blazing inferno.

But they needn't have bothered- she's safe all the time. And if this is the fireman's reward, it looks as if there'll be lots of VOLUNTEERS in the future.

Veteran Buses-

London-- To mark the Silver Jubilee of the Omnibus Society, formed in 1929, a procession of veteran buses travel the road again - including an old timer of 1908 vintage.

And the "hub of the universe" welcomes them back- once a much-loved feature of Dear Old London Town.

Duchess of Kent home-

Southampton--- The Duke of Kent and his younger brother Prince Michael, were at the quayside to greet their mother- the Duchess of Kent, and sister Princess Alexandra- arriving home in the Queen Mary, from their successful tour of Canada and the United States.

And the Mayor and Mayoress of Southampton were the first to express the Nation's thanks to two charming Royal Ambassadors, who have travelled so many thousands of miles to further British interests overseas. So we say "Thankyou and welcome home".
