

Scotland: Arriving at Stirling ~~Castle~~, the Queen was welcomed by General Sir Gordon Macmillan. <sup>COLONEL</sup> ~~Gen.~~ of the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders.

~~Looking~~ Looking refreshed from her holiday, Her Majesty inspected the Regiment. The occasion was the Crimea Centenary ~~anniversary~~ <sup>COMMEMORATING</sup> celebrations which brought the Highlanders' - ~~their~~ famous battle honour "Balaclava".

Her Majesty then proceeded to the Castle, where she received the keys from Lord Erskine - on behalf of his Grandfather - the Earl of Mar and ~~Kelms~~.

Later, to round off this day of military pageantry - the Queen watched the picturesque ceremony of "beating the retreat".

~~Meanwhile, in Edinburgh, a new laboratory for electronic research was opened by the Duke of Edinburgh. The new building will become the centre of the electronic engineering industry in Scotland.~~

Meanwhile, in Edinburgh, a new laboratory for electronic research was opened by the Duke of Edinburgh. The new building will become the centre of the electronic engineering industry in Scotland. In <sup>the</sup> ~~the~~ <sup>His</sup> ~~High~~ Royal Highness expressed the view that electronic gadgets would play an increasing part in Britain's defences.