Battered by storm-driven Atlantic seas, the Newfoundland fishing vessel - "Student Prince II" wallows helplessly, 185 miles off Bermuda. On board, her crew of ten cling perilously to life - transmitting distress signals that brought the luxury liner "Queen of Bermuda" racing to the spot - guided by radar-equipped coastguard planes.

And soon - a lifeboat is fighting its way through the mountainous seas towards the sinking vessel...

A grim battle that ends in a triumph for high courage and seamanship - as all ten survivors are rescued and transferred to the Queen of Bermuda. Later, the Master of the liner, Captain Banyard, records the incident in his log - simple words that cover the heroic story of rescue at sea.
