Cavalcade of Motoring

21st June 1955

Fifty years of motoring service were honoured in Regent's Park, when the Duke of Edinburgh reviewed the "Golden Jubilee" parade of the Automobile Association - of which he is President.

~~There~~ <sup>was</sup> a "cavalcade of progress"; led by the first A.A. bicycle patrol - who warned early motorists of speed-traps ahead!

In those far-off days, these veteran cars were restricted to a twenty miles-per-hour speed limit, and now they pay tribute to the organisation that fought their battles for emancipation <sup>S</sup>

And here - an 1899 Wolseley-Voiturette proudly leads the modern car section featuring <sup>Britain's</sup> latest glittering models ~~and~~ and their foreign rivals

So, from those humble beginnings, in 1905, (when a few drivers combined to ~~beat~~ <sup>give a</sup> beat the speed trap), the A.A. now ~~provides~~ <sup>gives a</sup> comprehensive service to its 1,600,000 members - besides making an invaluable contribution to "safety on our roads!"

This year also marks the Golden Jubilee of the "Nickelodeon" the world's first all-moving picture theatre. The name "Nickelodeon" was derived from <sup>a nickel -</sup> the admission fee, and the Greek name for theatre.

The first shows were staged in Pittsburg by Pioneer John P. Harris, ~~and~~

Sporting thrills, too, packed them in - the famous World Heavyweight Champion "Gentleman Jim" Corbett - in action.

The comedy angle brought "Fun on the beach" and, <sup>we'll bet,</sup> ~~no doubt,~~ an "X" certificate, <sup>too!</sup>
