South Africa: British Lions lose test

30th Sept. 55

South Africa: The British Lions were leading by two matches to one when in the fourth and final Rugby test opened at Port Elizabeth. And when Griffiths of Wales kicked ahead and Greenwood won the race for possessionand touched down the Lions looked set for victory. Pedlow of Ireland duly landed the goal points for a five-included But South Africa have not lost a home series since 1896. And making a brilliant recovery, the Springboks hit back in the series.
