

Racing news from Caulfield, near Melbourne - reveals where the flat-race jockeys go in the wintertime. Among the overseas contingent, invited to ride in the International Stakes, was the Queen's jockey, W.H. Carr. The great crowd eagerly watch the different race tactics as the field comes thundering round into the final straight of this mile-and-a-half race...

Now watch number three, That's Sir William, the three-to-one favourite... and that's Carr ^{taking} ~~guiding~~ him the shortest way home. Nearer the camera American ^{star jockey} ~~competitor~~ Johnny Adams, on Booker, is riding vigorously. But Sir William holds on - to win by half-a-length.

Title-honours for Sir William and a place in the sun for a grand rider. Over now for another riding classic, at South Curl ~~Club~~ Beach, near Sydney - where thirty crews are taking part in the 26th annual surf carnival.

These are the lifeguards, whose top-class seamanship save hundreds of lives every year - round the Australian coast. SOUND

But to-day, they ^{are} providing carnival thrills - battling the giant combers.

3) A hectic moment and - ~~it's~~ it's "All Change!" SOUND

~~Coming in on the right wave...~~

Yes! If you catch the right wave - it's a sheer joy that never seems to end.

But even a permanent wave falls out of place sometime!
