

Queen Continued

The following day brought another vast demonstration of loyalty and affection, as thousands waited outside the Cathedral Church of Christ - where the Queen and the Duke were attending morning service.

The day marked the anniversary of the Battle of Myohaung, in Burma - in which West African troops played a distinguished part. Leaving the Cathedral, Her Majesty was escorted by the Archbishop of West Africa

A notable feature of post-war life ^{in Nigeria} has been the great advance in medical benefits. ~~Early~~ ^{her} in the tour, the Queen brought encouragement to this vital service when she visited the Igobi Orthopaedic Hospital.

The much-publicised "rainmakers" apparently produced more homely weather -

~~conditions for the Colours Presentation at Lagos Race-course. Sheltered by her African staff, the Queen inspected the Parade~~

when the Queen inspected men of the Second Battalion, the Nigerian Regt. on Lagos Race-course...

The occasion was the presentation of New Colours - the first ^{time the} ~~such~~ ceremony ^{had been} ~~to be~~ performed by a British Sovereign, in Nigerian history
