

After being surrounded by civic pageantry at midday, as the guests of honour at a Mansion House luncheon, Marshal Bulganin and Mr ~~Krasch~~ ^{KRUSHCHEV} were greatly interested in City landmarks during their evening trip down river to Greenwich.

At the Naval College, the Soviet Leaders were entertained to dinner by the three Services in the famous Painted Hall.

The following day brought one of the heaviest programmes of the tour. Wearing protective clothing, the two ^{SOVIET LEADERS} ~~statesmen~~ toured Harwell, our leading atomic research centre, and learned something of our ~~achievements~~ achievements in the domestic field.

The afternoon brought a visit to Oxford University, where the visitors received a boisterous welcome during a tour of the colleges. ~~the undergraduates letting off fireworks and chanting "Poor old Joe"~~ ^{one} ~~the~~ occasion of quiet dignity will, no doubt, be most remembered by the ^{Russian} leaders, their reception by the Queen at Windsor Castle.

During their audience, the two statesmen offered their gifts ^{the Royal Family} to the Royal Family, ~~a sable fur wrap for the Queen, two horses, and~~ ^{including the one that's made most of the best} ~~and~~ a brown bear cub, for Princess Anne.

Back ^{to London and} a reception, given by the London County Council.

~~Bulganin took the civic regalia worn by the Mayor.~~

Interest, too, in British aviation: at London Airport, Marshal Bulganin and Mr ^{KRUSHCHEV} ~~Krasch~~, inspect the famous Britannia jet-prop airliner - before flying in a Viscount to Birmingham.

In that great Midland industrial centre, they toured the British Industries Fair at Castle Bromwich ^{BUT} their stay in Birmingham was cut short, as they are already feeling the effects of ^{their strenuous} ~~a~~ ^{their strenuous} ~~marathon~~ ~~tour~~ ~~from heavy industry, to the~~

From heavy industry, they moved on to aerial progress - a visit to Marham, Norfolk - where the R.A.F. put on an astounding display of jet aerobatics ~~for the visiting statesmen.~~

Then - what we hope impressed them even more - a ^{call on} ~~visit~~ to a typical British family in the station married quarters. ~~English home - one of the married quarters on the station.~~ A happy scene with a message of its own. ~~And finally, a call on a typi~~
