

Harwell: During the past ten years, the Atomic Energy Research

Establishment has been shrouded by the strictest security. However, the recent change in its security-classification has resulted in the adoption

"Open Days." | Maximum dations

Visitors can now wander, almost at will, looking at such things as reactor-controllers - taking care, of course, to control the urge to touch.

And with the recent news that our first atomic power station (Calder Hall) has started working - we owe a great debt to our "atoms for peace" scientists...

(H-Bomb follows)