

Canterbury Colours

Canterbury: Through the streets of the historic Cathedral City, march men of the East Kent Regiment (The Buffs), carrying the Colours of the Old Second Battalion - which ~~was~~ presented by the Lord Mayor of London ~~sixty-eight years ago~~ twenty-eight years ago.

The Battalion has been disbanded - and their Colours were to be laid up for safekeeping in the Cathedral.

The ceremony was combined with a Remembrance Service - attended by members of the Old Comrades' Association.

South America oil

South America: The search for oil is stepped-up in the jungles of Colombia, as the precious fluid takes on ^{an ever more} vital ~~and~~ strategic importance. Small charges of dynamite are used in the search for underground reservoirs. Yet, the terrain is so rich, that, in many places, the oil actually seeps on to the roads. Meanwhile, a vast new industry has sprung up overnight - an American investment that will bring rich benefits to Colombia.
