

Busmen's Holiday for Logmen-

Aug 24th. '56.

British Columbia-- Lumberjacks take a day-off for a picnic on Vancouver Island. But it's really a busman's holiday, for the tools of their trade become their sports equipment, in a real spinechiller ^{an} 85 foot speed-climb.

Then it's down to earth again- 10 ^{feet} at a time- no job for the tenderfoot- You've got to be slick and sure-footed.

The next down has a rougher trip ~~_____~~
~~_____~~

Sawing through a five-foot log is timed to a split-second ~~_____~~
~~_____~~

The winner lops off a slice as easily as cutting bread for the picnic sandwiches.

But the day's highlight is the log-rolling contest, when the speed of their footwork is as fast and accurate as any ballet dancer. With the inevitable watery end for the loser.

~~_____~~ the "jousting" competition ~~which~~ invariably ends in the same way. BUT IT ALL ADDS UP TO A JOLLY HOLIDAY FOR EVERYONE!
