

Smithfield Show

At Earl's Court ^{LONDON,} the great Exhibition Hall spotlights agricultural progress - from the latest types of tractor to the finest cattle - taking part in the Smithfield Show.

From Sandringham had come this "Red Poll" - exhibited by the Queen

~~The show is a magnificent display~~

The Show features only meat-producing animals - so this could be the first introduction to your Christmas fare.

A prizewinner measured in plates of roast beef. So glad to have met you

America Dock strike

America: The dock strike that, until recently, paralysed the entire Eastern seaboard - brought an unique occasion to the Hudson River.

Lying at two piers were America's four largest passenger liners - headed by the ~~the~~ United States....the first time the "big four" have ever docked in one port, at the same time.

From America, too, comes news of a building feat that really exploited the headlines - a house in Massachusetts - made entirely of newspapers - ^{yes, newspapers} 100,000 of them.

Built by Mrs Stenman and her late husband, the house has stood thirty years - and even two hurricanes couldn't blow it down.

The fireplace is a real picture - made from coloured prints in America's Sunday newspapers.

Besides other furniture ^{even} the piano is made from papers - so everything is played in rag-time.

Xmas cards

London: During a ceremony at the Mansion House, the Lord Mayor, Sir Cullum Welch, displayed a Christmas card - copies of which are being sold to aid the Hungarian Relief Fund.

The design has been specially drawn by the Italian artist Annigoni - famous for his portrait of the Queen.

The Card is based on the world's first Christmas ^{card} ~~greeting~~ - published over one hundred years ago.
