

Treasure Island was the homely back ground to a ^{real-life} ~~"treasure island"~~ adventure for children of Royal Wanstead School - a party on H.M.S. Apollo.

~~At~~ ^{where} the minelayer, ^{was} moored in the Pool of London, there was a "pirate" welcome for the youngsters. And traditional Navy hospitality - for the vessel had become "H.M.S. Fun and Games!"

After the thrills of spaceship travel - there was a more enjoyable way of "walking the plank!"

"Lighting-up time" brought an end to the fun on deck - so the ^{children} youngsters (many of them orphans) sampled the delights of the galley, and there were definitely - "No Complaints!"

But as you'd expect to find on a treasure island - there was a villain of the piece...