Just a war-scarred London square: but an area of great interest to motorists - with the news that Parking can be a costly business.

For this is a model of the Underground Car Park which, (if permission is granted), will be constructed under Finsbury Square - with basement space for 350 cars...

Hopeful news for City motorists- offsetting the bogy of the parking meter, which may also be given a <sup>try out</sup> ~~test~~, in Mayfair...

In West Berlin - experiments with road safety of a different kind - a belt of cats-eyes to illuminate traffic policemen at badly-lit crossroads.

(2) And for blind pedestrians - a battery-operated flash-signal - an innovation providing greater road protection for those who need it most.
