London Airport: A great welcome home for boys who battled their way to top Olympic honours; Scotland's Dick McTaggart, ~~proudly holding the~~ ^{with the} trophy he won as the most stylish boxer ^{of the Games}.

And young Terry Spinks, the Canning Town flyweight, who gets his happiest ~~big-fight~~ big-fight reception - a hug from his Mother, and a ^{pat on the back} "Well Done, Son" from Dad...

Congratulations, too, for the rest of the team who brought home one silver and two bronze awards, in addition to the Gold Medals of ^{for Boxing} McTaggart and Spinks, Britain's first/since 1924...

Five medals for a team of seven - a triumph for boxing skill - while there's no doubt that young Terry is the "golden boy" to a proud Mother of Canning Town.

WELL DONE
