

Christmas Tree gift to London-

Dec 20th. '56.

GB 2397

London-- Norway's much-appreciated annual gift- a sixty-foot Christmas tree, once again enlivens busy Trafalgar Square.

And the Mayor of Westminster accompanied the Norwegian Ambassador, when he came to switch on the illuminations.

Londoners say "Thankyou" for the tree that radiates warmth and fellowship- a glowing symbol of Anglo-Norwegian friendship- born in the unhappy time of war.

Also in London- a Royal occasion, as the Queen arrived with her children for a special holiday treat- a West-End pantomime.

There were flowers for Her Majesty- presented by the four-year old daughter of the chairman of the company owning the theatre.

And a bouquet, too, for Princess Margaret, who shared the afternoon's fun with her young nephew and niece.

The Matinee was in aid of King George's Fund for sailors. And the thrill of their first pantomime will be ~~XX~~ ^{AN EXCITING YULETIDE STORY} ~~Yuletide Pantomime~~ to be told to their father on his return home.