The "fruits" of agriculture filled a vast shopwindow in Glasgow - when the Scottish Dairy Show (now in its ninth year) ~~opened~~ came to Kelvin Hall.

Opening the Show, Lord Inverclyde received a presentation Cheddar Cheese - which he gave to a local hospital.

A welcome city occasion, ^{REMINING} ~~for it reminds~~ those whose livelihood lies in trade and commerce, of the farmer's great contribution to the Nation's larder. ~~X~~ ²² This giant Dunlop cheese, (weighing eleven hundredweights, and containing eleven thousand pints of milk,) ^{WAS} a worthy centrepiece of the Show. ~~28~~ ³

It also demonstrates progress down on the farm. To-day, there's a typical ^{MECHANICAL MILKER} 20th-century dairy-maid - and no one has a hand in the milk until ~~it~~ ^{you get it.} ~~reaches your doorstep.~~ ¹¹ ~~5~~

For the farmer, too, there's a welcome opportunity to keep up-to-date in modern methods - as he surveys the long line of agricultural machinery. ⁷ ~~4~~

But perhaps the most important visitors are the pedigree cattle - at least, they seem to get all the attention. ⁶ ~~3~~

One three year-old youngster, Craig Aitken of King's Park, Glasgow, found much to admire in a shaggy Highlander. ⁶ ~~2~~

~~Monday,~~ The parade of fine pedigree beasts augurs well for the future of Scottish dairy farming - and one Ayrshire class winner, "Blackfield Sheila's Girl" caught the judge's eye. ⁹ ~~3~~ (Blackfield)
