

News highlights (Continued)

New factory

2481
Sussex: Holding the industrial spotlight, Madame Markova, the famous Prima Ballerina, opens a new underwear factory at Portslade, near Brighton. Built by a world-renowned lingerie concern, the factory (the ninth to be opened in Britain) ~~covers 38,000 square feet and~~ will provide work for 650 employees.

To celebrate the opening, the firm's products were featured in a fashion display - with local girls demonstrating their work in a model way.

Dulles

Washington: An informal slant on world problems was the outcome of a visit by Mr Gromyko, the Soviet Foreign Minister, to the home of America's Secretary of State, Mr Dulles.

During their talk - the statesmen of East and West exchanged views on the Middle East, Disarmament, and the European situation.

From America, too, comes ~~news~~ news of how mechanisation is benefitting another branch of the U.S. Army.- A demonstration of automatic mine-layers.

These actual field operations shows the Sapper's best friend - an automatic mine planter...

The planter is towed by a bulldozer, <sup>which digs the</sup> ~~specially constructed to dig the~~ hole - and then ~~replaces~~ the turf after the mine is laid. No more back-aches for the Engineers.

Racing

France: ~~the centenary celebrations at~~ centenary celebrations at Longchamp, - where fashion and racing is always a winning double. After a glimpse into the form-book of one hundred years ago - the fashionable ~~company~~ - company (including the young Aga Khan) settled down to watch the Grand Prix de l'Arc de Triomphe, <sup>Europe's richest race</sup> ~~Europe's richest race~~.

Among the field of 24 were top stars from Britain, Ireland and America. But only the bookies enjoyed the birthday. The winner was Aroso - a fifty-two to one outsider...