

Lord Derby and the Lord Mayor welcomed the Duke of Edinburgh to ~~Manchester~~
Manchester - a joint County and Civic greeting...

The welcoming ceremony took place at the private sidings of the Wythenshawe transformer factory - so the Royal Visitor, soon reached the heart of Industrial Manchester.

Touring the factory, the Duke was ~~keen~~<sup>ready</sup>, as always, to add to his growing knowledge of industry and commerce.

~~As the tour progressed, the Duke's interest in the~~

The official time-table was already upset - for the arrival at the City Art Gallery.

EXAMINING

~~Examining~~ the superb masterpieces comprising a Centenary Exhibition of European Old Masters - the Duke recognised five paintings - loaned by the Queen.

From the past - a visit to an institution that will help to safeguard Britain's future. At the College of Science and Technology - Prince Philip opened a new extension...

After ~~making a dynamic speech~~<sup>speaking on</sup> "Science and prosperity" in the Great Hall, the Duke (escorted by the President, Lord Chandos) was given a gala send-off...

Receiving, on the way, - a souvenir - a copy of the College Magazine, reporting his visit - presented by the Editor, Rhys Lewis.

Finally, there was a peep behind the security ~~curtain~~ curtain at one aspect of Britain's defence programme. At the Bristol-Ferranti factory - the Duke saw work <sup>IN</sup> progress on the "Bloodhound" - Britain's first ~~guided~~<sup>GUIDED</sup> ground-to-air missile...
