In England to learn the language Ghurka corporal, Kamansing
Linbu dropped in at London Zoo to renew an old friendship.

Back in 1952, on patrol in the Malayan jungle he found a tiger cub, adopted it, called it Nepti and when it got too big to handle, presented it to the London Zoo. ~~XXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXX~~

Now, after 6 years they meet again. ~~It's~~ ^{No} use though, Nepti doesn't remember him - ^{to the} the end of a romance...~~.....~~

But this Malayan partnership works out ~~NA~~ - wonderfully. Meet Salleh and his Berok monkey, Jambol. Salleh's got a new approach to an old job and now his work is literally as easy as 'picking-up-nuts'. Jambol shins the trees and chucks 'em down...~~.....~~

One tree finished let's move on to the next, without all the trouble of touching down first. Just swing across and ~~XXXX~~ X back to work.....

This way it doesn't take long to get the job finished and it's ~~xxx~~ soon time to knock off and slide down to earth again. ~~.....~~

~~Back in England~~ ^{Back in England} ~~author~~ ^{Author} Phyllis Hastings has a new style in ornaments. First you don't see it - then you do. Yes, that's Vivi her miniature Yorkshire terrier, ~~she's~~ just 28½ oz - not alot of dog. Vivi's fully grown, But her sisters puppies? ~~Well~~
Well they're just one week old.....

~~For such a small dog Vivi keeps strange company.~~ ^{Now} Enter Burbidge with his mistress, Yvonne Mitchell - ^{is} Mmm that's a lot of dog to let loose with such a ~~small~~ ^{little} lady...~~.....~~

But Burbidge is the perfect gentleman bull-dog - his only wish to make Vivi happy and ~~she's~~ ^{SEE} she's just as snug as a bug in a rug....

Mind you it's easy to misunderstand the gent's intentions

Perhaps it would be safer under the chair...

Sister Rosy's bigger - got more Yorkshire courage perhaps -

~~anyway plenty of brains~~ and once one's in, all the family want to play. Hey don't leave me behind...~~.....~~
