

INTERNATIONAL SWIMMING GALA.

The start of the men's 100 yards Free Style at the International Swimming Gala held in London. Representatives of the Allies competing in friendly rivalry for aquatic honours. Most numerous entries in this event were the Canadians; but it's Home Guardsman Grey who is claiming the race. Among the onlookers is Prince Bertil of Sweden. Practically every Allied shoulder flash is to be seen at this United Nations sporting highlight. The Dutch Olympic Swimmer Miss Willy den Ouden, and Charles Gebura, the man who broke the bank at Monte Carlo. Grey comes home the winner, and congratulations come to him in Polish, Yugoslav and a dozen or more other languages.

Start of the Men's Relay race. One of the events which was hotly contested between the Americans and British Home Guards.

The Final heat in this race produces another Home Guard win, but when the total points covering all the contests were added up, the Americans beat the Home Guard by one point.

Even in this warring world we can still find time to keep alive the spirit of International Sport.
