

A FALLEN TYRANT.

Through a doorway in the former Fascist Headquarters in Catania, comes Desario Birancati, one of the most hated Fascists in Sicily, to face interrogation by a Military tribunal. Birancati's history is one of Political graft, corruption and blackmail. This fallen tyrant (now a gesticulating, fawning figure) poses as a very humble Uriah Heep, trying to win favour by a nauseating display of cringing simplicity.

He scorns the very idea of any guilt. The familiar tricks of casting blame on his associates. No character actor could appear more revolting than this slinking Fascist making his excuses.

A despicable product of a rotten regime. The cell doors open to admit Desario Birancati who has many brethren. They too, can not escape.
