

FOOTBALL.... ENGLAND V SCOTLAND AT MANCHESTER.

The circle marks the spot where scotland suffered their biggest defeat in the history of International soccer. Cataloging the goals, we start off with Hagen opening the score for England. Sixty thousand thirsty throats were heard all over Manchester, as Stanley Matthews the Wizard of Dribble planted a free kick on Lawton's head and the ball went in for number two.

The white shirted English players were right on top of form. No opposition could stand up to the speed and punch of their forwards. Third goal came in a smashing kick, from Garter.

Back comes Lawton with another, to build the score to four-nothing. It's that man again shouts the crowd, and Lawton slams in another one.

New Scotland knows how Wales felt at Wembley. Trouble with the English, they don't know when to stop. Here's number six from Hagen, and Scotland haven't started.

About time we had another from Lawton. Thank's Mister - that makes seven.

Eleven weary Scotsmen resigned to their fate, Up came Stanley Matthews and then there were ... EIGHT GOALS. Wait 'till the 51st Highland Division get to hear of this.
