

AMERICAN FOOTBALL THRILLS.

By way of compliment to the many American "visitors" in Britain we offer these pictures of recent football games in the United States. They are not without interest to soccer - and raggar - fans over here, for they are "thrill-a-second" battles,... It's NOTRE DAME versus the NAVY, with eighty-two-thousand excited people packing the Cleveland Stadium.

This bit of play is best described in the words of the American commentator who said "NOTRE DAME'S swivel-tipped-half-back Greighton Miller has taken a Bartelli pass, and sets figure eights on a fifty-yard run, but a Navy tackler makes contact".

The crowd roars as NOTRE DAME pile up the score. Bartelli gets away with a kick, the ball is taken by Hane who sets off hell-for-leather, in a hurry to get there before he forgets where he's going. Time and again he's hit before he goes down under a magnificent flying tackle.

NOTRE DAME sinks the Navy 33-6, and the crowd yells its farewell to the winner's star player who is now off to join the US. MARINES for battles of another sort.

Meanwhile, in Philadelphia, seventy-two-thousand rain soaked people see the army attack the Pennsylvania Quakers,... It seems im you can do anything in American football short of using a tummy gun; so you mustn't expect me to explain the rules.. They tell me there are rules!

All through the game it rained like - er, anything! Unlucky weather for crowd and players, .. and just to round things off, the final score has an unlucky ring too - a draw - thirteen thirteen.
