A FLYING PANTECHNICON.

Britain's biggest Air Transport in commission; the Avro York, an aircraft masterpiece capable of great things. In war it can take heavy and bulky freight into its commodious fuselage. Jeeps, light tanks and dismantled fighter planes can be transported to the battle fronts in a matter of hours. The perfect plane for war and peace, the Avro York is the blood-brother of Britain's famous Lancaster bomber. A pioneer of the great aircraft with which this country will meet the postwar demand for global transport by air. Bigger and even better freight and passenger planes are promised in the future for British Enterprise operating over the world's airways.

Thirty tons of aircraft plus cargo. This sky shot gives us a peep into the near future, when over 50 people and a ton of freight will take wings along the Empire Air Routes.
