KING AND QUEEN VISIT MINES.

The King and Queen recently spent a day in the South and West Yorkshire Coalmining areas. Typical of the reception given Their Majesties in dozens of small mining villages, is this welcome by Darton School-children.

Elsewhere, men who had just come off shift were seen in conversation with the King and Queen. It was at Wentworth that the Royal visitors took lunch with seventy miners in their Canteen.

A re-instated open-cast site was visited at Bullcliffe Wood.

These are some of the many scenes which furnished some of the day's memorable pictures. The Yorkshire Colliers greatly appreciated this visit by the King and Queen. North Country affection is forthright. It was evident at every place in the tour.
