

46-52

THE WAR IN THE PACIFIC.

Japanese Torpedo planes attack a United States Carrier-force in the South Pacific.

Every mid-ocean engagement like this leaves the Japs a lot weaker. Their fanatical onslaughts cost them heavy casualties in men and aircraft.

Admiral Halsey , retiring as South Pacific Commander), leaving a job well done), has said the Japs back is broken in this area.

With sixty Allied carriers fighting Japs, control of the Pacific is ours.