

10022001

44-96

GREECE GREETS GREEKS

The famous Greek Brigade, after distinguishing itself in North Africa and Italy, returns to Greece and parades through Athens. Spectators search the faces of the marching men, hoping to recognise a friend or relative....It's easy to imagine how the people feel when they see a son or husband or brother from whom they have heard nothing for years.

These men, who fought through the years of their exile, have come back, hardened in battle, to form the nucleus of the new Greek National Army.

Lipsticky kisses can be embarrassing when Greek greets Greek.
