WAR REPORT FROM TWO FRONTS

A.T.S.

There's ~~W.A.S.P.~~ in them thar beets. Girls from London's ack ack defence are helping once more to bring the enemy down, this time in Belgium. They are all volunteers and live under active service conditions, a phrase that really means something in this kind of weather.

This is the first mixed Ack Ack Unit to be in action in an overseas theatre of war.

More snow: and a British White Patrol in Germany makes the most of it as they reconnoitre near the town of GEILENKIRCHEN. The Ka Klax Klan had nothing on these chaps.

Mines the enemy won't use again are collected by British Pioneers and R.E.s. from minefields left behind by the Germans in their retreat north of Ravenna, Italy.

Detonator cables are fitted, and that's the end of that.

At least two thousand heavy box mines won't trouble our men any more.
