LAST BOMBING PICTURES FROM EUROPE?

Heligoland, German naval base and fortress island gets a shattering attack from heavies of R.A.F. Bomber Command. After this operation it was considered unlikely that any living thing could have survived in the island.

These may be among the last bombing pictures we shall see from Europe. It is fitting they should record the destruction of Hitler's mountain hide-out. Whether he was at Berchtesgaden or in Berlin at the time, the Fuhrer will have found life pretty uncomfortable.

Down below is Hitler's famous Eagle's nest. It's got eggs in it now all right.
