LABOUR MINISTER GEORGE ISAACS PRESSES THE DEMOB BUTTON

Gearing up to handle 11,000 men a day, the Government's demob machine gets into full swing with a broadcast statement from Mr. George Isaacs, Minister of Labour.

SPEECH

Demobs will reach a million and a half by the end of the year and 3 million by next June. Already back in civvy street with a here's ticket is ex-Flight Lieutenant Edward Nolds, D.F.C. who has changed his uniform for a uniform.

SPEECH

The flood of ex-servicemen and women brings new vigour and a new outlook to every walk of life. Ex-Wren Petty Officer Pinneck leaves a navy store for her old job.

SPEECH

Here's a man who typifies millions of ex-Tommy Atkins now falling right into the old breakfast-time routine. Buried behind their morning papers, creatures of habit still, they're behaving exactly as they did the morning the last war broke out in 1939. On that day too they nearly missed the 8.15.

A few hundred thousand of them went from Dunkirk to Alancin and had business from the Pacific to the Rhine. They're quite a type.

Well, Civvy Street, here's your man.
