

BRIDES ON THE MOVE

Taking a first look at San Francisco comes a cargo of Australian G.I. Brides and babies. Wives rate high on the list of world exports. On board the Monterey are 500 brides from Australia and New Zealand, with 250 babies heading for a chewing-gum future.

The home-country these wives have left behind is the promised land to English brides of Aussie service men. In London, they stage a protest march to the Ministry of War Transport demanding priority passage to the homes they've heard so much about in letters. A rash of posters tells officials there's trouble ahead if the ships don't turn up soon.

All over the world, the brides are on the move.
