A BREAK FOR JOE DAVIS

Carrying a golf club instead of the familiar billiards cue, World's champion Joe Davis relaxes as he trains - using a golf green in place of the green baize of the snooker table. Golf expert Ernest Whitcomb does the coaching, and snooker-king Joe Davis limbers up for his world championship battle with Australian Hercules Lindrum. Insured for £3,000 against non-appearance, Joe hopes the match will net £12,000.

World snooker champ since 1927, Joe Davis is not so happy at petting the golf ball. But it's all right so long as you've a bit of billiard chalk in your pocket.

It's a new high in ball control - and here's a free trick for snooker-men.

SPEECH

Well, I'll be snookered.
