

TO BLAZES WITH WALKIE TALKIE

With Britain's Fire Services called on to deal with an average of 300 fires a day, fire fighting teams use the war's headline-making scientific devices. King pin of the new speed methods is the radio control truck.

SOUND

Elegan of the latest fire-squad technique is "To Blazes with the Walkie-Talkie" - and the short-wave radio sending and receiving apparatus adds fire-fighting to its wartime laurels.

SOUND

Over to Fire Officer Luff - inside the burning building.

SOUND

The gain in speed and accuracy makes Walkie Talkie a big life and property saver. Speaking through the throat microphone, Fireman Morris short waves his fire-control report from the roof.

SOUND

And from now on, they blaze away with Walkie Talkie.
