Twelve hours before, this was a street. Sad picture repeated in many 0+210

From Sweden, a personality plus. One time Queen of the Screen, Greta (wanna-be-alone) Sarbe. Surprisingly accommodating - for once - the Garbe gave our cameramen a break, so long as he kept the lights down.

We tried hard but she just wouldn't give us a spell of the famous husky voice. Hallywood may have almost forgetten her, but for her native Sweden, Garbe is still top of the stars. As for us, we salute the Queen she used to be.

m our reporter in Palestine, an introduction to Britain's High missioner Sir Alan Cumingham. Away from the tension with a friendly audience, Sir Alan hands out primes to winners of the local agricultural exhibition. Some: the Arab town of Neblus.

Corrying the toughest of our overseas assignments, a portrait of a hard-worked Governor.

And now meet George Robey - and Mrs. Pathe's reporter butts in on a session with the birthday telegrams.

SOUTH

Washington. On the upstairs track goes America's Henry Wallace. After him, a full cry of newshounds. Start of the trouble was his mlap at Britain and his "get-friendly-with-Russia" speech. Result? Well, Mr. Wallace Can tell you.

SPERM

br the letter - and for Henry - the tray marked "eutgoing." Mountime, rom London, Mr. Trumen summons V.S. Ambassader Averell Harriman. And hw, for Mr. Wallace, a spell on the outside, leeking in.

Neemberg. Final act in a world drama. Here the Allied Court has deided the fate of the 21 em-bosses of Mazi Germany. For Nuremberg these are the last days of extreme security measures.

On presentation, the spotlight stops and fixes on Britain's Norman Birkett. Fame, original lawyer, Muramberg sets the seal on a great Career.

British head of the Allied Tribunal, Lord Justice Lewrence. Through him, 21 Hamis hear the words of the world's judgment.
