NOVEMBER 5th

Out of the smoke screen at the ancient town of Rye comes galloping bill of invaders. In the borough of Hastings, Rye is near the spot where William the Conqueror nipped in to Britain for that little bit of bother in 1066. For this year's Bonfire Night, they re-enacted a lot of old history - and some that's not so old.

It was a busy night for Law and Order, especially when Guy Fawkes Esq., villain of the piece, took over.

Putting Rye on the fireworks map, a 150 foot bonfire was built around a whole pine tree. And with Guy Fawkes under arrest, he got the job of lighting his own birthday blaze.
