AROUND BRITAIN

In London, Britain's leading hairdressers meet to choose 1947's best hair-do. This is the final of more than 100 competitions. With so many waves and curls to handle, it took hours to get the models all fixed up for the judges inspection.

And here is the winning style as worn by Ruby Atkins, 17 year-old blonde from Birmingham. The girl who designed it, is 20 year-old Busty Cartwright also from Birmingham. With a side sweep of waves and curls, it's in semi-Edwardian style.

Second prize was designed by Frank Stevenson for Alexandra Kirwin, both of Manchester.

Film star Patricia Ree was there to offer congratulations.

The British Association of Physical Training hold their 41st annual display. Top of the programme - a demonstration of Scottish dances.

Aim of the Association is to provide teachers for educational and recreational gymnastics. It looks as if they have done a thorough job. Here are the junior students going over the Swedish table.

For the finale the youngsters give this demonstration of the pyramid. Building it are the pupils of Tottenham Grammar School.

You can't keep this up for ever - not even for the cameramen.

At Erith, Kent, meet Charlton's Scottish outside-left Chris Duffy and his Irish wife. This is what he has to say about his six minutes from time goal that gave Charlton the Cup.

SOUND

The 1947 tennis season opens with the British Hard Court Championships at Bournemouth. One spectator made up the entire audience when our cameramen arrived. Meeting in the first round were Derek Barton, Davis Cup Singles player against spectacled Birmingham aircraftman Henry Walton. The 25 year old Midlander learned his tennis in Birmingham Parks. He claims he has never had a lesson in his life. His play in this match brought a few more people along to join us.

Barton, Britain's number 2 player had a bad day. Walton beat him in five sets. The result gives our Davis Cup selectors yet another headache.
