

TERRITORIAL RECRUITING DRIVE OPENS

Throughout Great Britain, the Territorial Army has opened its recruiting drive. In Balham, London, two famous Territorial regiments are on parade. The colours of the 8th Battalion Royal Fusiliers and the 624th Light Aak Aak Regiment, Royal Artillery, are returned to Headquarters at Fusilier House. Since the outbreak of war, they had been stored in Balham's St. Mary's Church.

The Standards enter their new Headquarters.

The C.O. of the Aak Aak Regiment Lieutenant-Colonel de Warter salutes the Colours. During the last war both the Regiments gained battle honours in Africa, Italy and Western Europe. The ceremony marks the start of the new Territorial Army.
